MADE IN THE OLD TOWN

villager heartily recommends the magnificent innis & gunn. a multi-award winning, delicious scottish beer with hints of caramel, fruit and vanilla. enjoy on its own or with something from the villager kitchen.

here's their story...

"innis & gunn, a beer discovered by accident."

"it all began back in 2002 when a famous scotch whisky distillery contacted us. they wanted to make a beer-finished whisky. they had tried dozens of beers, but none of them were working. "can you help us?"

we liked the sound of this. so we created a special beer that we believed would season their oak barrels with a sweet, malty character. the distillery filled this beer into empty barrels and put them into their granite warehouses to mature.

after 30 days our beer was poured away and the oak barrels filled with whisky. this whisky turned out to be exceptional and the distiller ordered thousands of litres of beer from us to season more barrels. we thought no more of it until we received the call that would change everything. "you have got to taste this beer that we are pouring away. it's absolutely delicious," said the distillery manager.

tasting this 'oak barrel' beer for the first time was an unforgettable moment – it was delicious, and had a flavour unlike any beer we had ever tasted. it had been completely transformed by its time in the special barrels used at the distillery.

we did not realise it then, but a whole new style of beer had been born. from that moment we have been travelling around the world introducing as many people as possible to the unique flavour of our oak aged beer."
